Excerpt: .he could view the garden and the whole country around, and wheve he might own, that the road to Virtue terminated in Happiness. Though from this description yon may imagine that a vast tract of ground was necessary to exhibit such a pleasing variety in, yet be assured 1 have seen several gardens in England take up ten times the space which mine did, without half the beauty. A very small extent of ground is enough for an elegant taste; the greater room is required if magnificence is in view. There is no spot, though ever so little, which a skilful designer might not thus improve, so as to convey a delicate allegory, and impress the mind with truths the most useful and necessary. Adieu. LETTER XXXL FROM THE SAME. In a late excursion with my friend into the country, a gentleman with a...
